Re: DDRS Staffing Changes

Date: February 2, 2010

The Division of Disability and Rehabilitative Services (DDRS) announces the retirement of Michael Hedden, Director of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services (BRS) effective February 19, 2010. Since 2003, Hedden served as the director of Vocational Rehabilitation Services (VRS). In 2005, his leadership role expanded with the creation of BRS. A dedicated employee of the State of Indiana for 35 years, Hedden's career also included serving as a disability claims adjudicator, VR counselor, VR area director, and numerous supervisory and field service positions. DDRS thanks Hedden for his many years of service and wishes him the best in his future endeavors.

Effective February 22, 2010, DDRS welcomes Greg McAloon as the Director of BRS. Currently serving as the Director of Contract Management within the Family and Social Services Administration (FSSA), McAloon brings 25 years of experience working and advocating for people with disabilities. Initially serving in the industry as a Case Manager, he became a state employee as the Contract Manager for DDRS in 2006. McAloon's career passion stems from personal experience as the father and caregiver of three grown children with disabilities.

Please take the opportunity to introduce yourself to McAloon and begin including him in appropriate meetings and correspondence. You may contact him by E-mail at Greg.McAloon@fssa.IN.gov.
